Greetings All!

The old saying goes that March comes “in like a lion and out like a lamb.” We can only hope the latter holds true. To say this winter’s weather has been a challenge would be an understatement. At our recent Biennial Umpire in Chief (UIC) clinic temperatures in the 40’s seemed downright balmy to folks who had come in from parts of the country where it was well below zero. While this California native has a hard time imagining that kind of cold, we’ve had our share of crazy weather here in the west. The Northwest got hit with snowfall like they’d never seen and there was even snow in downtown Los Angeles. Yours truly was in Redding, Calif. for a youth meeting and a foot of snow fell, the most since 1968. I know, I know a foot of snow is like summer to some of you, but I think I can safely say that a good part of the country is ready for the thaw to begin and the sun to shine, because that means another season of softball is here.

The aforementioned UIC clinic was a resounding success. Over 400 umpires were in attendance and the positive feedback to the clinic’s content and format was overwhelming. Even folks who had attended many clinics over the years agreed that it was one of the best ever. USA Softball continues to be at the cutting edge when it comes to training our officials, but like many sports it has become increasingly difficult for us to identify, train and retain new umpires. It’s no secret that there is a shortage of officials across the nation and USA Softball is no different. You can help us by referring interested parties to your local association Umpire-in-Chief. USA Softball will provide new recruits the training and mentoring they need to be successful on the field. We have had umpires as young as 14 work our National Championships. You can also help us by having a no tolerance policy for abuse of officials as part of your league’s Code of Conduct. Half of all new officials leave by their first or second year and the number one reason cited is abuse by coaches and parents. A recent survey of more than 17,000 officials by the National Association of Sports Officials (NASO) found that 57 percent say that sportsmanship is getting worse and that 45 percent of female officials say they have felt unsafe or feared for their safety at games – and that number is even higher among men! That is plain inexcusable, let’s all work to put an end to it.

In the good news department, the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) has been conducting an audit of USA Softball for the purpose of returning us to Olympic Sport status. It was a long process, taking over a year and a half, and necessitated the adoption of new Bylaws and putting new processes in place to meet current standards. This was obviously very important since our Women’s National Team had already qualified for the Tokyo games. I am very pleased to report that in December the audit was completed and we were granted Olympic Sport status by the USOC. Thanks goes out to our USA Softball staff and legal counsel who worked diligently and spent many hours to make it happen.

On a less positive note, and most ironic considering the above news, it was recently announced that softball and baseball were not on the “short list” of sports selected by the Paris Organizing Committee to be part of the Olympic Program for 2024. Instead the choices were breakdancing, surfing, skateboarding and sport climbing. The final decision will be made by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) in 2020, but at this juncture it appears unlikely we will be competing in Paris. To say we were disappointed was an understatement, but to quote our Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Craig Cress “We won’t give up, the work never ends – but we can promise you that our athletes will continue to compete each year and proudly represent our great nation on the international stage and we encourage fans to continue their loyal support of softball. We also stand with the international softball community in the fight for inclusion in future Olympic Games and we will continue to work with groups who value the growth of our sport both domestically and internationally”. To that I respond hear, hear!

Spring is here, hopefully, and that means another great year of softball. Enjoy the game America plays®.

Meet Mark and Taylor... athletes who are proud to play #USASoftball!

MARK, 57
New York
CPI, NY Thunder
Men’s Class A, 60-Over Fast Pitch
First Base, Third Base, Outfield

HIS START
I started playing softball at age 18 after being a batboy for my father.

FAVORITE PART OF PLAYING SOFTBALL
Having fun and meeting new friends.

GOALS IN SOFTBALL
I’ve played on six National Championship teams and my goal was to win the USA Softball Men’s Class A National Championship.

BIGGEST ACCOMPLISHMENT
Winning the USA Softball Men’s 50+ National Championship. I went 3-for-4 with three RBIs.

MOST MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE
Winning the 2004 USA Softball Men’s Class A National Championship.

TOUGHEST OBSTACLE
Getting time off from work to go to tournaments.

ROLE MODELS IN THE GAME
My father. He played hard and was a great hitter.

ONE LAST THING...
I’ve played fast pitch for 40 years and at age 57 I am still going. I love the game of fast pitch and have met many friends from many different states and countries.
TAYLOR, 14
Illinois
Tennessee Mojo 04 - Fisher
Girls’ 14-Under Fast Pitch
Third Base/ Shortstop

HER START
I started playing softball when I was about six years old. I first started out in coach pitch and then when I was eight years old I started playing travel fast pitch.

FAVORITE PART OF PLAYING SOFTBALL
Softball has allowed me to meet so many people from around the country that I now communicate with on a regular basis. Also softball has given me the chance to travel all over the country.

GOALS IN SOFTBALL
Ever since I was little I have always dreamed of playing in the Women’s College World Series. Now that I am older that dream has become a goal that I will need to work hard to achieve.

BIGGEST ACCOMPLISHMENT
The accomplishment I am most proud of is committing to Auburn University. I’ve always wanted to play college softball and now I’m able to say I will play college softball at Auburn.

TOUGHEST OBSTACLE
This past fall I had a stress fracture in my left hip and it hurt really bad when I ran so whenever I got on base I needed someone to run for me. This affected me a lot because speed is a big part of my game.

ROLE MODELS IN THE GAME
My role model in softball is Jenna Lilley because I always looked up to her playing third base because that is how I try to play third. Also it was very inspiring how she came back from her nose injury - she came back ready to play right away and her first hit back was a two-run single which helped Oregon win 3-2.

ONE LAST THING...
My life is surrounded by softball. Every weekend I’m at a softball tournament and all my closest friends are on my team. I’ve always loved playing softball and there is nothing I’d rather do than be on the field playing with my best friends.

USA SOFTBALL HALL OF FAME COMPLEX WELCOMES BACK THREE SIGNATURE EVENTS IN THE MIDST OF RENOVATION

With renovations well underway at the USA Softball Hall of Fame Complex – OGE Energy Field – INTEGRIS Field, USA Softball has unveiled the 2019 schedule of events to be held at the Softball Capital of the World®. With three events held from May-June, including the 2019 Big 12 Conference Softball Championship, NCAA Women’s College World Series (WCWS) and USA Softball All-American Games, the complex will open its gates for a brief time before closing down for the final phase of renovations.

Renovations to the historic facility are made possible following the 2017 Proposition 5 Bond package that was approved by the citizens of Oklahoma City in September of 2017. These renovations, which are expected to be complete by the 2020 NCAA WCWS, will give the facility a modernized look with upgraded features for both the fan experience and media coverage.

Returning to the USA Softball Hall of Fame Complex is the Big 12 Conference Softball Championship, which will be held May 10-11. For the 29th year, USA Softball will serve as the host facility for the NCAA WCWS May 30-June 4/5, which features the top eight teams in Division I softball competing for the National Championship title. Tickets are now available online for the NCAA WCWS and can be purchased by visiting https://www.ncaa.com/tickets/softball/d1 or by calling the NCAA at 800-591-9198.

The USA Softball All-American Games, a prestigious tournament intended to provide national exposure to elite athletes in the 12-Under Junior Olympic (JO) fast pitch division also returns for the third-straight year. Region 5 Blue claimed the 2018 All-American Games title after edging out Region (continued on pg. 23)
2’s Blue roster, while 2017 featured a Region 5 showdown where the Region 5 Red squad finished atop the podium. Information on regional tryouts, selection processes and additional information can be found at www.usasoftballallamericagames.com.

Phase III of renovations at the USA Softball Hall of Fame Complex began in July of 2018, which includes demolition of the outer entrance to the facility and press box. Visitors to the Big 12 Conference Softball Championship will get a glimpse of the renovation progress, which is expected to pause prior to the start of the 2019 NCAA WCWS. Key features of Phase III include an all new press box and game day operations center, which will include ticket windows and entrances to the facility. A broadcast booth, upgrades to existing technology infrastructure, elevators, meeting rooms and media work areas are also expected to be completed.

Following the 2019 USA Softball All-American Games, the facility will once again close it’s gates for the final phase of renovations, which addresses the seating capacity. Upper-deck seating will increase the capacity by an additional 4,000 seats while new restrooms and suites will enhance the fan experience.

Softball season is in full swing, no pun intended. This time of the year, athletes often find themselves with their plates full of sport obligations, school obligations, and social obligations. Time management and routine were things instilled in me from an early age, and I am so thankful to my parents because of it. There are some things I wished I would have listened to earlier in my life (in middle school and high school specifically) that would have made the shock of college a bit smoother. I remember having AP classes in high school while playing multiple sports, and instead of me taking ownership of my schedule, my mom just did it for me! I'm super grateful for that, obviously, but it was hard when my mom couldn't do it once I got to Alabama. I was on my own and it was hard. It took about a year or so to adjust and to be honest with you, there are still some things I am trying to get better at in terms of managing my time and productivity effectively. There are three key things that have helped me manage my time better during a busy season: Stress relieving activities, planning my planning, and prioritization.

STRESS RELIEVING ACTIVITIES
Some sort of physical activity in your routine is such a crucial step, yet for most people, this is the very thing they skip once they get busy! We hear this especially with high school athletes. The excuse I hear all the time is, "I just don't have time to get to the gym, I have school and practice!" First of all, in college, you WILL work out during season, so there is no excuse why you shouldn't get used to it now. But, second, exercise is the biggest scientific stress relief that we have ever found! Exercise reduces the levels of the body's stress hormones, adrenaline and cortisol. It also increases the production of endorphins, which are the body’s natural painkiller and mood enhancer. In addition, the most basic fundamental truth of exercise is that it increases the flow of blood in your body - this includes YOUR BRAIN! More blood to the brain equals more alertness, clarity, and focus, all of which are necessary to manage your time in the most effective way. So, feeling stressed and overwhelmed because you have so much on your plate? My advice: get to the gym, take a walk outside or pull up a YouTube video of your favorite yoga flow and get yourself some mental clarity.

PLANNING YOUR PLANNING
Planning your planning is a great strategy because if you truly set aside time to plan your life, you will do it. Have 15-20 minutes each week of UNDISTRACTED planning and write out your schedule either in a planner, on a white board, or even just a piece of paper. I highly recommend organizing things into 30 minute or 60 minute windows. You would be surprised how much we can accomplish if we devote a full, undistracted half or full hour’s worth of work to any task. By eliminating things like your cell phone, Netflix, or even music, more hours of your day will open up and your productivity will soar.

PRIORITIZATION
While planning, organize those 30 minute and 60 minute windows of your time by prioritizing your tasks. Ask yourself: "What's important?" "What can wait?" and "What can I get ahead on this week?" The best diagram I have seen is here. Place your important/urgent tasks early in the week and make sure to get them done. Your important/not urgent tasks should only be completed only after your most urgent/important tasks. This box is what would like answer the question: "What can I get ahead on this week?" Your urgent, but not important tasks, try to delegate to someone else. For example, if you are like me and were in a few student organizations that require a lot of work and planning, try to delegate as much of that process as you can. The best leaders often empower those that follow them, so not only are you developing leaders, you are managing YOUR precious time much more effectively. It should go without saying, but for the sake of explanation, your not urgent/not important tasks, just cut them out!! There is no need to clutter your brain and productivity with things that are not necessary (hello, social media, I'm definitely talking to you.)

Time management is so important to your success not only in softball, but in the rest of your life. There will always be things to do and goals to accomplish. I truly believe that improving time management skills now will set a crucial foundation for your success in whatever you try to pursue. Stay organized, plan things out, and attack your goals.

USA PATRIOTS ANNOUNCE DATES AND LOCATION FOR 2019 KIDS AND ALUMNI CAMP

The USA Patriots, formerly known as the Wounded Warrior Amputee Softball Team, recently announced the host city and location for the 2019 Kids and Alumni Camp. Held in Virginia Beach, Va., the Kids and Alumni Camp will be hosted by Virginia Wesleyan University. The Kids Camp is set to begin Monday, July 29 with the Kids Camp Game scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 3 at TowneBank Park, home of the two-time Division III National Champions on the Virginia Wesleyan Campus. The Alumni Kids Camp will begin Thursday, Aug. 1.

This will be the seventh-consecutive year for Kids Camp in which the team hosts this unique and life-changing opportunity for 20 children along with one parent/guardian who attend their camp at no cost, while it is the third year for the Kids Alumni Camp.

During this week-long event, the USA Patriots will teach kids who have been living with congenital limb loss or have suffered amputation from illness or injury the basic fundamentals of playing ball sports. Members of the USA Patriots team lend a first-hand experience demonstrating the correct way to maneuver basic fundamentals of running bases, batting, pitching and catching while overcoming obstacles and adapting to everyday challenges.

“Our annual Kids Camp is my favorite event of the year,” said USA Patriots player and board member, Brian Gentilotti. “It is a true blessing and honor to be able to spend a week with these kids and their parents creating friendships that will last a lifetime. Bonding with and mentoring these campers on and off the field and showing them Life Without Limbs Is Limitless® truly depicts what this team is all about.”

This will be the first year in which the Alumni Kids Camp will also take place at the same location overlapping with the original Kids Camp.

“Our family experienced Kids Camp in 2015 and it was an incredible week,” said parent of 2015 Alumni Kids Camp William Thompson, Jessie Thompson. “This was the first time William was able to spend time with other limb-different kids as well as adults. We saw him truly let his guard down and just be a kid, instead of the kid missing a leg. During our week at camp, we were able to see William gain an incredible sense of self-acceptance and connect with other kids facing similar challenges, and take them in stride. We had the opportunity to meet other families who could whole-heartedly understand the uniqueness of raising a limb-different child. William, along with the rest of our family, developed life-long friendships. We are so thankful for Kids Camp as well as all the players who will forever hold a special place in our hearts.”

If you know a child who would be a good candidate, registration is now open and can be found at http://woundedwarrioramputeesoftballteam.org/kids-camp. To learn how you can volunteer, please contact camp@thewwast.org.

USA SOFTBALL NATIONAL TEAM COACHING STAFFS ANNOUNCED FOR 2019

The Red, White and Blue will be led by the best-of-the-best as USA Softball has announced the complete coaching staffs for the Women’s National Team (WNT), Men’s National Team (MNT), U-19 WNT and the U-18 MNT.

Ken Eriksen (Tampa, Fla.) will lead the WNT for the ninth-consecutive season while Gregg Leather (Staten Island, N.Y.) will return to the helm of the MNT for his third stint as Head Coach. Guiding the U-19 WNT in their quest for a third-consecutive Gold at the World Baseball Softball Confederation (WBSC) U19 Women’s World Cup is Heather Tarr (Redmond, Wash.) and Bob Piddock (Castro Valley, Calif.) will serve as Head Coach of the U-18 MNT for the first time in his career.

Read more about each Head Coach and see the complete coaching staff’s below.

Bob Piddock
Has coached fast pitch softball in a variety of capacities for the last 25 years, where he has led teams to eight USA Softball National Championships. At the international level, Piddock served as an Assistant Coach for the 2018 USA Softball Junior Men’s National Team (JMNT), where he helped guide the program to a 2-4 record and eighth-place finish at the WBSC Junior Men’s World Championship. Most recently, Piddock has played a pivotal role in the creation of the Men’s Futures Team, which provides player-development opportunities for athletes within the MNT player pool.

Gregg Leather
Took over the Men’s National Team Program in summer of 2017. Having served as an Assistant Coach for the Men’s National Team from 2014-2017, Leather helped guide the U.S. at two WBSC Men’s World Championships and the 2015 Toronto Pan American Games. In his first stint as Head Coach at the Pan American Championship in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Leather helped guide the U.S. to a Bronze Medal finish, the first international medal for the program since 2003.

Heather Tarr
Her first Head Coach assignment with USA Softball with previous experience as an Assistant Coach for the Women’s National Team. In 2017, Tarr joined the Women’s National Team coaching staff as an Assistant Coach, helping guide the 2017 roster to a Gold Medal finish at the Pan American Championship in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Returning to the coaching staff in 2018, Tarr once again had a Gold Medal season with the WNT as the team captured back-to-back World Championship titles at the WBSC Women’s World Championship in Chiba, Japan.

Ken Eriksen
Has been Head Coach for Team USA since 2011. In his tenure with the WNT Program, Eriksen has amassed two WBSC World Championship Gold Medals and two Silver Medals and a Pan American Games Gold and Silver Medal.
The Paris Organizing Committee met recently to determine which sports would make up the 2024 Olympic Program and decided upon breakdancing, surfing, skateboarding and sport climbing to make the final cut of shortlisted sports. The decision comes after the groundbreaking Olympic Agenda 2020 passed by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) that gives Olympic host cities the right to propose sports that are popular in the host country and add to the appeal of the Games.

“We’ve taken our time to truly take in what Paris 2024’s decision means, not only to USA Softball as a whole but to the sport that means so much to people all around the globe,” said USA Softball Chief Executive Officer, Craig Cress. “While disheartening, the response we’ve seen from the softball community is a resounding display that our sport will continue to thrive and grow. We won’t give up, the work never ends - but we can promise you that our athletes will continue to compete each year and proudly represent our great nation on the international stage and we encourage fans to continue their loyal support of softball. We also stand with the international softball community in the fight for inclusion in future Olympic Games and we will continue to work with groups who value the growth of our sport both domestically and internationally.”

The IOC still needs to give final approval to the choices made by the Paris 2024 organizers during the executive board in December 2020.

Announced on August 3, 2016, baseball/softball was one of five new sports added to the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Program. It would mark the two sports’ return following their removal after the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games. Softball and baseball’s global reach, loyal fan base and positioning across many of the biggest sports markets continues to offer a unique opportunity to further spread and elevate the Olympic brand. Other factors considered in the sports package included the impact on gender equality, the youth appeal of the sports and the legacy value of adding them to the Tokyo 2020 Games.

Experienced athletes know that successful competition doesn’t start with the starting gun or the official’s whistle. It begins months before, with physical and mental preparation. The two components are equally important, because the goal is to connect your body and mind, letting you focus yourself in the moment.

You can imagine the physical side of preparation as a kind of triad: training, nutrition, and rest. Each element plays a role in supporting your performance.

1. TRAINING

Every athlete’s training routine is different, customized for their sport and position. An aerobic program, combined with balanced weightlifting, may be appropriate for endurance sports. For a sport where strength and power are key, more intensive weight training may be a better choice. No matter what, it’s important to train with complete concentration – the same concentration you’d bring to the field on the day of the game.

2. NUTRITION

If you’re not eating a proper diet all year round, you can’t make up for it in the hours before your event. Good nutrition is a full-time commitment – and if you treat it that way, your body will have the fuel it needs for optimal performance. It’s simple: if good food goes in, you’ll be prepared to put out your best performance.

3. REST

Did you know that the human body produces most of the recovery-essential hormones while you’re asleep? That’s why getting the right amount of rest is so critical. Getting at least eight hours of rest per night helps promote growth, recovery, and peak performance. Quality of rest is important, too; you’ll derive more benefits from deep, rejuvenating sleep that fully relaxes your body and mind.
MENTAL PREPARATION

1. ROUTINE
A consistent pre-event routine can help you focus during competition. The more you stick to it, the more effective your routine will be. Maybe it’s a ritual like packing your gear in a certain way, or listening to your favorite music. Maybe it’s something you do during the event, like taking a deep breath before the start of the game. If you follow a pre-game routine, you’re “programming” yourself to perform.

2. VISUALIZATION
Wish you could practice without the physical strain? Well, you can. Learn to visualize the event you’re about to compete in. Imagine a successful race – play it out in your mind. What do you see? What do you hear? Make sure your visualization always ends with the positive outcome you’re aiming for. If you need an extra incentive, consider this: repeatedly visualizing the same positive images actually enhances your physical performance.

3. POSITIVITY
Next time you make a mistake, don’t be too quick to criticize yourself. Instead of going negative, have a silent, affirmative talk with yourself. Come up with a word or phrase that inspires you – a kind of “mantra.” Make it an aspirational word like “believe.” Or make it more concrete, and focus on an aspect of your performance – something like “stay steady and smooth.” Always keep your inner conversation positive.

THAT KIND OF PREPARATION WORKS FOR OLYMPIC GOLD MEDAL SWIMMER CODY MILLER:

“It’s important to have a solid preparation and recovery program, because preparation and recovery is the foundation of success. When I’m preparing for meets, I make sure that I get lots and lots of sleep, and make sure that I eat very healthy things – have a really solid diet – and make sure that I’m mentally preparing and visualizing for my races.”

Olympic Gold and Silver Medalist and former National Champion with the UCLA Bruins Natasha Watley (Irvine, Calif.) has been named a Major League Baseball (MLB) Youth Softball Ambassador, as recently announced by the MLB.

Watley will support MLB’s Baseball & Softball Development group with initiatives and strategies that are designed to grow softball at the amateur and youth levels. Watley’s appointment is the latest in a string of efforts by MLB to increase softball participation, which was catalyzed by its partnership with USA Softball in 2016. Since then, the two organizations have developed the Softball Breakthrough Series and the Softball Elite Development Invitational, and have operated clinics at MLB Youth Academies throughout the year. Watley will join Finch, who was also named an MLB Youth Softball Ambassador in 2017 and has since expanded her role to be the Youth Programs Ambassador.

Watley, an integral member of the Gold Medal-winning Team USA during the 2004 Olympics in Athens, is a former infielder for the UCLA Bruins. She is also a member of the UCLA Athletics Hall of Fame.

Watley and current Women’s National Team member Sahvanna Jaquish recently participated in a ‘PLAY BALL’ event followed by a two-hour baseball and softball clinic on Saturday, Feb. 9 at the Compton MLB Youth Academy. Both events, which were free for participants, are part of MLB’s efforts to encourage and support young women interested in playing diamond sports. This event, along with a similar event held at the New Orleans MLB Youth Academy on Saturday, Feb. 2 led by Finch, celebrates ‘National Girls & Women in Sports Day,’ which was founded by the Women’s Sports Foundation and was officially observed Wednesday, Feb. 6.

“I’m so excited and honored to be partnered with MLB. With their big initiatives and push to get more girls playing softball, I couldn’t be more proud to be an ambassador for young girls playing ball!”

– Natasha Watley

A total of 46 umpires were honored by USA Softball at the 26th Biennial Umpire-in-Chief (UIC) Clinic. On Saturday, Feb. 2, the 10 Regional Awards of Excellence were awarded in addition to the Merle O. Butler National Award of Excellence, given to Jim Craig (USA Softball of New York). In its third year, USA Softball also awarded the Tom Mason Award of Excellence to Diane Carden (USA Softball of Delaware), which honors excellence in rule knowledge and application.
Over 200 umpires were recently honored for their years of service and expertise by becoming members of the USA Softball Umpire Awards Program. One of the nation’s largest officiating organizations, USA Softball umpires are nationally recognized as the most trained and proficient in the sport and have the opportunity to be recognized for their dedication to the sport through three available outlets: the Medals Program, the National Indicator Fraternity and the Elite Umpire Program.

"USA Softball’s umpire program continues to be a leader amongst sports officials because of the dedication of individuals like our latest Awards honorees," said USA Softball Director of Umpires, Kevin Ryan. "Joining the USA Softball Umpire Awards Program is a testament to the countless hours they put in to refine and enhance their skills and the standard of excellence they uphold both on and off the field. Congratulations on joining such elite programs."

TO HOLD INAUGURAL GOLD BALL GALA TO FUNDRAISE FOR NATIONAL TEAM PROGRAM

USA Softball will host the first-ever Gold Ball Gala at the Cox Convention Center in Oklahoma City on May 29, 2019. The Gold Ball Gala serves as a fundraiser for the USA Softball National Team Program, with proceeds raised going directly to help fund both current and future National Teams in their efforts to stand atop the podium.

“We’re looking forward to an evening of celebrating the many accomplishments of our National Team athletes with the fans who have helped support them along the way,” said USA Softball Chief Executive Officer, Craig Cress. “The Gold Ball Gala will give USA Softball fans the chance to show their support for the men and women who proudly represent the United States on the international stage. Without the backing and generosity of supporters of the program, many of the opportunities that are afforded to our National Team athletes simply would not be possible.”

The Gold Ball Gala, which will celebrate USA Softball National Team athletes past, present and future is set to become a staple in funding the future of Olympic hopefuls and the game of softball on the international stage. The Gala will also provide a send-off for athletes before the start of the 2019 season.

Women’s National Team Head Coach Ken Eriksen will make an appearance, while athletes confirmed for attendance so far include: Monica Abbott, Valerie Arioto, Jazmyn Jackson, Sahvanna Jaquish, Haylie McCleney, Michelle Moultrie, Aubree Munro, Janie Reed, Keilani Ricketts, Delaney Spaulding, and Kelsey Stewart.

A highlight of the evening for those in attendance will be a celebration of the Women’s National Team, who became back-to-back World Champions last August and became the first team to qualify for the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games. This year’s event will also feature three-time Olympic Gold Medalist Leah O’Brien-Amico, and National Softball Hall of Fame member and Head Coach for UCLA Softball for 27 years, Sue Enquist who is making an appearance as the keynote speaker.

This year’s Gala will also feature a silent auction, where attendees can bid on one-of-a-kind memorabilia and more.

If one were to research the accolades that two-time Olympian Jessica Mendoza earned throughout her playing career, the results would never end. A career with the United States Women’s National Team that spanned 10 years, Mendoza made an immediate impact for the U.S. offense. With the ability to hit for power and average while also using her speed in the short game, Mendoza consistently hit over .300 while holding down the three-hole spot in the lineup. Mendoza was a part of the 2004 Olympic Softball Team that absolutely dominated the Athens Olympic Games, a feat which helped earn a spot in the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame with her teammates. With an Olympic Gold and Silver Medal, three World Championship titles and two Pan American Games Gold Medals, the medals speak for themselves - but it is her willingness to inspire the future generation of athletes and create opportunities for females in sports that stands out. After hanging up her cleats following the 2010 season, Mendoza continued her role as an ambassador for the game, holding the position of President for the Women’s Sports Foundation. These days, you can see Mendoza in the broadcast booth. Beginning her analyst role for NCAA Softball, Mendoza’s ability to resonate with audiences ultimately landed her another milestone - making history as the first female analyst for a Major League Baseball game.
District Commissioner, Tournament Director, Team Leader and State Commissioner. Those are just a few of the titles that Tony Laws has held with USA Softball. Starting as a District Commissioner in 1969, Tony’s dedication to the game of softball is evident through his 50-plus years of service. First joining the USA Softball Council in 1986, Laws has served on numerous Committees, including Equipment Testing & Certification, Legislative, Long Range Planning, Tournament Awards and Seniors and Masters to name a few. His ability to lead and organizing events came to fruition in 2000 when he served as Team Leader for the United States Men’s National Team at the World Championship in South Africa. Two additional Team Leader appointments came in 2002 with the Women’s National Team and 2003 for the Junior Women’s National Team at their respective World Championships. In 2005, Laws became the Commissioner of North Carolina, a position he continues to hold today. What truly stands out amongst Laws’ accomplishments is the growth of the Senior Slow Pitch division of USA Softball, which annually has its National Championship in his hometown of Burlington, N.C. Laws’ continually displays exemplary leadership and his involvement has truly made a difference for USA Softball.

Warren Jones’ dedication to USA Softball hasn’t gone unnoticed. Little did he know when he first started playing at the age of 12 that he would embark upon a journey that would land him titles such as Player Rep, Committee Chair, Team Leader, Commissioner and eventually President. Jones bleeds “USA Softball blue” through and through, with his love for the organization evident to those around him. As a player and manager, Jones participated in four Men’s Major and 10 Class A Fast Pitch National Championship Finals. His first role as a USA Softball Council Member came in 1986 when he was appointed an At-Large Player Rep and as the saying goes – the rest is history. In his 33 years of service, Jones has served as Chair of the Legislative, Boys’/Men’s Fast Pitch and the Men’s National Team Selection Committees while also stepping up as a Team Leader for the 2003 and 2015 Men’s National Teams that competed at Pan American Games and various competitions for the Junior Men’s and Women’s teams. In 2006, Jones was selected as the Commissioner for the state of Ohio and helped steer the association into an era of stability and excellence in hosting USA Softball National Championship Finals. In 2016, Jones became the first African-American President for USA Softball and served a two-year term and under his guidance, USA Softball continued to be the leader in the sport of softball. Jones’ efforts to grow the sport of softball, particularly men’s fast pitch, has left an impact on the organization that has earned him a Hall of Fame honor.
