WHAT ATHLETES NEED TO KNOW ABOUT WELLNESS AND ANTI-AGING CLINICS
There are an increasing number of health clinics that advertise to be anti-aging or wellness clinics, many of which provide compounded pharmaceuticals, herbal medicines, steroid hormones, unconventional treatment methods, and dietary supplements to treat various maladies. While these therapies may seem routine or safe, it’s important for athletes competing in sanctioned events, even those at the non-national or recreational level, to recognize that some of these treatments may be prohibited under anti-doping rules. Moreover, the various healthcare providers who work in these clinics may not be aware that their treatments are prohibited in sport. Keep reading to learn more about wellness therapies in relation to anti-doping rules.

SAFE SPORT POLICY UPDATE
As of June 2019, USA Triathlon has implemented an updated Minor Athlete Abuse Prevention Policy (MAAP) to strengthen its athlete safety program and to ensure the environments in its athletic programs are as safe as possible at every level. The Minor Athlete Abuse Prevention Policy required by USA Triathlon provides participants with information necessary to proactively limit one-on-one interactions between minor athletes and adults who are not their parent/legal guardian. This policy addresses the following areas:

A. One-on one interactions — including meetings, individual training sessions, massages and rubdowns/athletic training modalities
B. Locker rooms and changing areas
C. Social Media and electronic communications
D. Local travel
E. Team travel

All of these policies are designed to protect both minors and adults. To view the updated USA Triathlon SafeSport policies including the Minor Athlete Abuse Prevention Policy please click here.
